TESTING FOR THE SAT/ACT AND COLLEGE ACCOMMODATIONS (WITH HINTS ABOUT HIGH STAKES TESTING)

“Testing for the SAT/ACT and College Accommodations (with hints about High Stakes Testing)” has been devised to help professionals understand the many reasons for and usefulness of evaluation for potential accommodations for both standardized tests such as the SAT and ACT, and for college and beyond. This will be an opportunity to learn what is required to accomplish this and how the results can be implemented. Long-term value of this undertaking will also be considered.

Date: Friday, October 29, 2010
Place: William Penn Charter School
The Timmins House
3850 The Oak Road
Philadelphia, PA 19129
www.PennCharter.com
Time: 12:00 P.M. “Meet and Greet,” SOS annual meeting
12:30 P.M. to 2:30 P.M. Program
Penn Charter will be serving a light lunch

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of this training, participants will be able to:

1. List the types of individuals who may need and potentially qualify for accommodations for the SAT/ACT and college, such as those with learning disabilities and/or AD/HD.
2. Determine the measures to be used, both standard requirements such as the WAIS-IV and Woodcock-Johnson and recommended additional targeted tests if needed.
3. Explain what must be included in a thorough assessment report for testing organizations and colleges.
4. Discuss the usefulness of the results of testing for purposes other than test accommodations, including individual academic recommendations and postgraduate planning.

OUR PRESENTER

Ilene Blain, Ed.D., NCSP, is a nationally certified school psychologist with a doctorate in the Psychology of Reading from Temple University. She has been evaluating students for learning, attention, and social/emotional needs for more than 25 years at the Center for Psychological Services setting in Ardmore. Ilene specializes in assessing high school, college and graduate students as well as adults. She also consults with families and individuals about issues pertaining to testing, remediation, accommodations and related services.

CE CREDITS

This session is co-sponsored by the Philadelphia Society of Clinical Psychologists (PSCP) and Specialists of Schools.
